Dear Mr. Chairman,

The Internet has quickly become a top source for news and information and has made many programs, opportunities and services more readily available. Unfortunately, the Internet is not readily available to everyone, and it should be.

It saddens me that there are individuals and families not able to access programs, services, information and news in a timely manner simply because they cannot afford the Internet. Similarly, there are individuals and families not able to take advantage of these great opportunities because internet service providers won't extend service to all areas.

It is necessary to ensure all individuals and families have access to wireless broadband internet access. I urge you to support the proposal to bring fast, free, family-friendly wireless internet access to all Americans. By producing an equality of access, this proposal will foster an equality of opportunity undeniably driving the American economy.

Sincerely,

Ray Craft
